LEANership is Leadership for Lean Implementation

→ Learning by doing a 6 month program to expose you to best practice knowledge and skills that you will apply within your business to increase its competitiveness. The sessions are practical, with experiential learning simulations, interactive DVD's, class participation, Australian Case studies, and practical hands on project work. You will implement a specific improvement project with a payback greater than the cost of the course.

You will learn

- To think differently about the way that you do things
- How to foster and nurture employee involvement
- Practical Tools for CI (Continuous Improvement)
- How to use employees' creativity and ingenuity
- New ideas that can be absorbed in small chunks
- How to be an effective change agent in the transformation to World Class

Change that will arise

- Put excitement back into continuous improvement for you and those around you
- Reduce employee stress and frustration
- Make this happen with employees, not to employees
- Turn ideas into plans, plans into action, deliver results
- Develop into a Learning Organisation that improves everyday

Who should attend

The program is aimed at managers in Manufacturing, Distribution, Government, Service, Healthcare, Finance, Administration and IT, who are looking for practical tools and tactics that will provide an edge ... quickly. It is also suitable for those who lead, guide, and/or implement improvement but need to understand the hands-on practical issues and tools.

Your presenters

Carla Geddes is the Principal of Practicon. She facilitates improvement by providing people with the knowledge, skills and direction needed for effective change. She has led change in senior roles with Procter and Gamble, Reckitt and Colman and Goodman Fielder. She now works with Australian companies on improvements often using High Performance Consortia, World Class Manufacturing and Lean Enterprise concepts.

Brian Levitan is the Principal of Lean Australia. He has successfully facilitated over 25 lean transformations resulting in breakthrough improvement in business performance, staff morale and customer satisfaction. The process ensures that the learning is transferred and the systems are in place for ongoing and sustainable improvement. He founded the Sydney Lean Network in 2003. There are currently more than 400 members.

Investment

The 6 month program fee is $6000 per participant ($3000 for members of the Performance Drivers Consortium). Significant discounts are available for multiple participants from the same company. For participants who do not need both streams of the program there is an option to take part in only the Leadership or Lean/CI sessions at a cost of $3500.
